

Family Matters: Reintegration of Adolescent Sex Offenders

Becky Palmer, M.S.

Few things are more distressing for therapists and probation officers than determining the youth and family readiness for reintegration. This workshop will speak to the impact of the abuse on the family and issues that may sabotage successful reintegration. Particular attention will be paid to collaboration and development of the treatment team, including child protective services, probation and other involved professions. Participants will have the opportunity to create a family reintegration contract and can expect to have some new tools to incorporate into their daily work.
